Embracing the Mystical: Winter Scents with a Twist in Glass Man’s Latest Edition

As the winter winds whisper tales of mystique and enchantment, Glass Man magazine turns its focus to a collection of hypnotic, otherworldly scents. In our latest edition, we traverse a realm where the spiritual meets the psychic, exploring fragrances that capture both the ethereal light and the intriguing darkness of the colder months.

Among these captivating aromas, one scent stands out for its unique story and compelling composition: Scorpio Rising by ERIS Parfums. This fragrance, a brainchild of New York-based perfume expert and author Barbara Herman, is a testament to her collaboration with renowned French perfumer Antoine Lie, known for his work on Armani Code and Calvin Klein Contradiction.

Scorpio Rising: A Fragrance with a Tale

Scorpio Rising, the seventh collaboration between Herman and Lie, is more than just a scent; it's a narrative in itself. Taking its name from Kenneth Anger's 1963 avant-garde experimental biker movie, this fragrance is an olfactory journey that pushes the boundaries of traditional perfumery. Herman's vision with ERIS Parfums has always been to tell subversive stories through scent, and Scorpio Rising is a shining example of this ethos.

A Symphony of Spices, Woods, and Leather

What makes Scorpio Rising truly mesmerizing is its rich blend of spices, wood, and leather notes. It's a fragrance that speaks of mystery and allure. The top notes of pink pepper and clove bud create a spicy introduction, leading into a heart of cinnamon absolute and Indian cardamom. These warm, inviting spices are perfectly balanced with the deeper notes of Somali incense, Atlas cedarwood, and guaiac wood.

As the fragrance evolves, it reveals layers of saffron, sandalwood, and ambroxan, intertwining to create a scent that is both earthy and mystical. The base of Haitian vetiver and leather accord adds a depth that is both intoxicating and grounding, making Scorpio Rising a perfect companion for the introspective winter months.

The Allure of the Mystic

What sets Scorpio Rising apart in the world of winter fragrances is its ability to evoke a sense of the mystical. It's a scent that doesn’t just warm the senses but also ignites the imagination, encouraging wearers to embrace their darker, more introspective sides. It’s as if each note in the perfume tells a piece of a larger, more mysterious story.

Celebrating Light and Dark

In this winter edition of Glass Man, we celebrate fragrances that explore the full spectrum of the season's character. While some scents in our selection bring forth the light, airy and hopeful aspects of winter, Scorpio Rising invites us to delve into the darker, more enigmatic facets. It’s a fragrance that reminds us that winter is not just a season but a state of mind, one that encompasses a range of emotions and experiences.

Concluding Thoughts

Scorpio Rising by ERIS Parfums, priced at £150 for a 50ml extrait de parfum, is more than a fragrance—it's an experience. It's for those who seek to explore the depths of their personality, for the dreamers and thinkers who find beauty in the complexity of winter's duality. As we embrace the season, let us also embrace the scents that capture its very essence, taking us on a journey through the mystical and the otherworldly.
